Expert Witness Skills and Knowledge

Possess a strong background in computer science and a work history in the areas of database development, networking, markup languages, information security, Web development tools and technologies, and large-scale, high-volume websites. Have testified on cases involving e-commerce and online shopping (Soverain), and the operation of websites, webpages, and web-based user interfaces (Alcatel-Lucent), helping to secure excellent results for the defendants in both of those cases. Have also worked on cases involving online product catalogs and their digital organization and representation, travel websites with combined air, hotel, and rental car packages, and social networking sites that involved modeling and using information about interpersonal relationships to predict potential additions to personal and professional networks online. Feel free to contact attorneys identified below, all of whom should be more than happy to provide references and reviews of my skills, knowledge, demeanor, and abilities.
